*Briefing regarding the situation at the DHL/Wilmington Airpark
August 8, 2008*

On May 28, 2008, DHL announced it is negotiating with its competitor United Parcel Service (UPS) to have UPS replace DHL's U.S. airlift and hub operations based in Wilmington, Ohio. If it goes through, this deal will economically devastate Wilmington and seven southwest Ohio counties through the direct loss of at least 8,200 jobs and many more indirectly.

History and Current Operations

The Wilmington Air Park has been a regional cargo freight hub and the area's largest employer since 1980, when Airborne Express bought the former Clinton County Air Force Base, creating the largest privately owned airport in the U.S. The air park has two landing strips with the capability to handle simultaneous incoming and outgoing flights, making it ideal for air cargo operations.

In 2003, DHL acquired Airborne and, with it, ownership of the Wilmington Air Park. Soon afterward, DHL received $422 million in incentives from the State of Ohio and local governments based on its commitment to maintain and expand jobs.

Currently, DHL contracts with ABX Air, Inc. ("ABX Air") to perform its national cargo sorting and air freight operations. ABX Air, which was created during the Airborne acquisition, is a cargo airline that operates out of Wilmington. It is a subsidiary of Air Transport Services Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: ATSG). More information is available at www.atsginc.com and www.abxair.com.

ABX Air has two contracts with DHL. The Aircraft, Crew Maintenance and Insurance (ACMI) contract covers air cargo flights and associated operations. Under a separate Hub Services contract, ABX handles DHL's package-sorting operations at Wilmington and in 15 hubs around the country.

DHL also contracts with another airline, ASTAR, to carry a portion of its air cargo. Formerly known as DHL Airways, ASTAR is headquartered in Miami, Florida. DHL owns 49 percent of ASTAR. More information is available at www.astaraircargo.com.

Economic Impact

Based upon 2006 data, the DHL Air Park is the largest employer in a seven-county southwestern Ohio area that includes Clinton, Fayette, Highland, Brown, Ross, Greene and Adams counties. Air park employees come from 45 of Ohio's 88 counties.

A DHL-UPS contract would result in the direct loss of 8,000 area jobs – with nearly 2,000 more indirect job losses. The economic impact from salary loss for ABX alone, in a worst case scenario, would be follows [jobs numbers in brackets]:

Clinton County* – $80.81 million [2,311]
Highland County* – $54.25 million [1,549]
Fayette County* – $12.28 million [351]
Brown County* – $5.5 million [158]
Adams County* – $5.4 million [184]

Other counties with significant potential job loss numbers include:

Montgomery -- 443
Greene* -- 573
Warren* -- 316
Ross County* -- 102

*DHL/ABX/ASTAR is the largest employer group for this County

The economic impact on Clinton County alone would be as follows:

Loss	Description	Annual Amount Lost
Payroll	ABX Air, DHL, ASTAR, US Customers and other air park	$257,100,000
City of Wilmington	1% income tax	$2,571,000
Clinton County	Sales tax revenue	$1,600,000
Wilmington Public Schools	1% income tax	$562,500
Local Business	Includes area business impact	$160,000,000
Employee health coverage	Estimate based upon	$63,000,000
TOTAL (APPROXIMATELY, ESTIMATED)		$421,896,500

The deal would have far-reaching implications for Ohio's logistics industry as a whole. Ohio currently is a U.S. logistics leader, and DHL's national sort facility in Wilmington is a key asset in a logistics management network that encompasses the entire spectrum of the industry. Ohio's central location and transportation strengths, including DHL, means that companies located in Ohio are within one day's drive of 62 percent of U.S. manufacturing facilities and within 500 miles of 59.5 percent of the U.S. population. DHL is crucial to maintaining Ohio's edge in the logistics industry.

Efforts Underway to Address the Issue

Ohio's elected officials are spearheading efforts to avert the potential economic disaster that could follow if DHL is successful in negotiating a deal with UPS.

On June 6, 2008, Mayor David Raizk, with the support of Ohio Lt. Gov. Lee Fisher, formed a broad-based task force created to preserve jobs and craft economically feasible solutions stemming from the potential deal. Since the announcement in May, the task force has convened every other week to report progress. Individual committee meetings have been held weekly.

The Ohio Attorney General has put DHL and UPS on notice that they will be looking closely at this transaction for compliance with the state's antitrust law.

State Senator John Carey (R- Wellston) and State Representative David Daniels (R- Greenfield) have called for a joint meeting of the House State Government & Elections Committee and the Senate Finance and Financial Institutions Committee, to be held in Wilmington, to hear testimony on the issue and address ways the state of Ohio can help in the matter. The meeting will be held on Tuesday, August 19, 2008 at 1 p.m. in Building 2 of the ABX Airpark facility.

The U.S. Department of Labor and Commerce is also aware of the situation. Robert Hickey, a representative from the U.S. Department of Commerce Economic Development, visited Clinton County and discussed federal Economic Development Assistance grants with city and county officials.

White House Chief of Staff Joshua B. Bolten has been appointed as the White House liaison for this issue.

Dear Assistant Attorney General Barnett and Chairman Kovacic:

We are writing to draw your attention to a May 28 announcement by Deutsche Post World Net and its wholly-owned U.S. subsidiary, DHL Express U.S. (collectively "DHL"). According to a press release issued by the company, DHL intends to enter into a contract with one of its principal competitors, United Parcel Service, Inc. ("UPS"). We believe that any DHL/UPS agreement raises substantial antitrust issues under Section 1 of the Sherman Act and Section 7 of the Clayton Act. As a result, before DHL and UPS complete contract negotiations, we strongly believe the Department of Justice, Antitrust Division ("DOJ") and the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") must examine any agreement, giving close scrutiny to the contract's harm to competition and consumers.

In its press release, DHL announced a plan to restructure its U.S. business "by working with UPS." Based on various press reports, as well as discussions with DHL and UPS, it appears that DHL and UPS will enter into a long-term contract under which UPS will provide air transportation services for DHL within North America. In sum, this agreement will allow for UPS and DHL to integrate key strategic assets.

We understand that the air transportation segment is a key component in the delivery of packages within the United States market. In addition, we also understand that the air transportation segment of the package delivery service appreciably impacts the cost and quality of the service.¹ If a final agreement is reached, DHL will surrender control over cost and service quality to one of its chief competitors, UPS, one of the two largest package delivery companies in the U.S. market. Consequently, we are concerned that if DHL ceases to control such a significant segment of its U.S. business operations, consumers will suffer in terms of the cost and the quality of the service provided.

¹ Attached as Exhibit 1 is a document that we understand was generated by UPS. In the document, UPS states that "Single carrier handling of shipments – from pickup to delivery" is a competitive strength to be used to its advantage.

Sherman Act Section One Issues

Based on the Antitrust Guidelines for Collaborations Among Competitors (the “DOJ/FTC JV Guidelines”), your agencies’ guidance indicates that an agreement that limits the independent decision making or combines control over key assets is prone to result in situations that “reduce the ability or incentive [for competitors] to compete independently.” In addition, the DOJ/FTC JV Guidelines also note that competitor collaboration “may increase the likelihood of an exercise of market power by facilitating explicit or tacit collusion.”

We are very concerned that any agreement between DHL and UPS in such a concentrated market increases the likelihood of anticompetitive collusion in that market. Our concern arises because it is inevitable that any agreement between DHL and UPS will require the sharing of competitively sensitive information. In addition, if DHL and UPS agree to an air transportation services agreement, DHL will surrender cost and quality control to UPS over a significant part of its U.S. operation. Outside of any cooperative agreement such as the DHL/UPS contract, we do not believe these competitors would share such information, nor would a company cede operational control over such an important part of its business.

While the DOJ/FTC JV Guidelines point out that information sharing is often reasonably necessary to implement agreements, the guidelines also note that in some cases in which the participants are actual or potential competitors, sharing information increases “the likelihood of collusion on matters such as price, output, or other competitively sensitive variables.” As a result, such an agreement should be scrutinized closely to ensure that it does not lead to consumer harm in terms of increased costs or decreased services. Finally, although neither UPS nor DHL has been publicly implicated, the DOJ’s investigation into criminal antitrust activities by certain global freight carriers evidences the need for the antitrust authorities to scrutinize any agreement between competitors.

Clayton Act Section Seven Issues

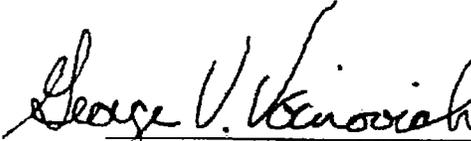

While we recognize that Section 7 is generally applied to mergers and acquisitions that substantially lessen competition, Section 7 has also been applied to the formation of joint ventures and other business combinations. We believe the application of Section 7 to this transaction is appropriate. If a DHL/UPS agreement is consummated, then the two companies will combine air transportation assets. These assets are a key element of package delivery services. In our opinion, this agreement will result in the de facto merger of the companies, resulting in the elimination of a significant competitor in the market for package delivery services. The DOJ and FTC must ensure that any DHL/UPS combination does not harm consumers, particularly given the limited number of competitors in the relevant market and the significant barriers to entry for potential new competitors.

Conclusion

As the nation’s antitrust enforcement agencies, the DOJ and the FTC should immediately open an investigation into the proposed agreement between DHL and UPS to ensure that consumers are protected from any actual or potential anticompetitive harm. We welcome the opportunity to provide additional assistance and request that you respond to this letter with all deliberate speed in light of the parties' stated plans to complete an agreement quickly.

Dear Subcommittee Chairman Kohl and Ranking Member Hatch:

I am writing to request your Subcommittee hold an oversight hearing on the proposed contractual agreement between DHL Express US (DHL) and United Parcel Service, Inc. (UPS), whereby, according to press reports and concerned citizens, UPS would become the exclusive provider of air transportation for DHL's North American package delivery service for a 10 year period.

While I am in no way passing judgment on the legal merits of the proposed transaction, I do support your call for the agreement to be subject to a thorough federal antitrust review by the Department of Justice. Further, I believe that it is appropriate for the Congress to consider the antitrust issues surrounding this matter and its impact on consumers' costs and quality in services, and urge your Subcommittee to conduct such a review as soon as possible.

Dear Dr. Appel:

We are writing in regard to the proposed contractual agreement between DHL Express US (DHL) and United Parcel Service, Inc. (UPS), whereby, according to press reports and concerned citizens, UPS would become the exclusive provider of air transportation for DHL's North American package delivery service for a ten year period.

Recently, we had the opportunity to hold a meeting that was attended by many citizens from Wilmington, Ohio, and learned about a wide-range of concerns surrounding this proposal, including the potential loss of thousands of jobs in the local area. While we are in no way passing judgment on the merits of the proposal, we do urge you to visit Wilmington, Ohio, in the very near future and take the opportunity to hear first-hand the many important issues of concern to the affected community.

Thank you for your time and consideration of this request.

Dear Senator McCain, Dear Congressman Turner,

Thank you very much for your letter dated August 12, 2008. I appreciate your concern with regards to the proposed contractual agreement between DHL Express US and UPS.

The proposal currently on the table is by nature a pure commercial outsourcing contract for services between two separate companies, limited to DHL's airlift in America, and would not diminish the competitive situation between DHL and UPS in the U.S. in any way. I can assure you that all other options had been thoroughly reviewed before the decision as it stands today was made. I am very aware that the plan will have significant impact on the people working at the air hub in Wilmington. However, there is no alternative to taking this drastic measure. DHL Express U.S. currently incurs annual losses of $1.3 billion. This leaves me no other choice than to proceed as planned, also considering my overall responsibility as Chief Executive Officer of a global company and to safeguard as many jobs as possible in the U.S.

DHL top management has in the past months had extensive contact with decision-makers on the local and national level concerning this issue. I have personally held detailed phone conversations with Ohio Lt. Governor Lee Fisher and U.S. Ambassador William R. Timken, Jr. in June, John Mullen (DPWN management board member and DHL Express CEO) and his team met on two instances in early June with U.S. Senators Sherrod Brown and George Voinovich; Congressman Michael Turner, Governor Ted Strickland, Lt. Gov. Lee Fisher and several Ohio State Legislators. Follow-up communications took place between our team and officials in Ohio.

DHL has already committed to fund a triple-digit million-dollar amount on planned severance, retention, and health-benefits for the workforce in Wilmington – that includes ABX, ASTAR and DHL employees – and other U.S. locations. I have a dedicated team with senior members from across the company acting on my behalf to ensure the proper implementation of these mitigation efforts in direct conversations with representatives of the community. All details regarding the mitigation review process will be brought to my personal attention and I will continue to be personally involved in the process. I want to give the team time to determine the effectiveness of the ongoing mitigation efforts and other initiatives, if any, that may be appropriate for DHL to help in Wilmington. Once that plan is established, I plan at the appropriate time to travel to the U.S. to discuss how we can implement it in close cooperation and in open dialogue with local authorities and other stakeholders. I will be happy to keep you informed on progress.

Again, the DHL family and I personally deeply regret that this unavoidable and irreversible decision will cause severe hardships to many families in Wilmington and Ohio. My colleagues and I will do our best to be of help.

The White House

Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. Zinsmeister:

During my recent travels, I visited with the mayor of Wilmington, Ohio and workers who would be affected by a proposed DHL-UPS agreement for services that would lead to the closing of the DHL facility in Wilmington.

I write to you in my capacity as a U.S. Senator because I believe that the Administration must act now on two fronts: first, the Department of Justice should examine the transaction to ensure that it is not in violation of antitrust laws and second, if it is not, then the government must work to ensure that these workers and this community are not left without assistance in finding new work for its people and new use for the existing infrastructure. I am pleased that you and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Sandy Baruah have been tasked with coordinating the government response to the situation and wish to offer any assistance I or my staff can provide.

As a matter of antitrust law, the proposed consolidation of DHL's domestic airlift operations under a competitor, UPS, raises concern. At the very least, the DOJ should examine whether having two competitors in a fairly concentrated market act as partners would have anti-competitive effects.

If the deal proceeds, Governor Strickland and Senator Brown have both told me that the DHL facility in Wilmington would likely cease operating. That would eliminate at least 8,000 jobs in Ohio and impact an estimated 41 counties. That level of concentrated job loss strongly weighs in favor of the government assisting them through the difficult time that will follow.

I understand that you are working with the Department of Labor and the Department of Commerce to coordinate a rapid response to what could be a crisis for the communities involved. As a Senator on the committee of jurisdiction over the Department of Labor, I would appreciate additional detail on your efforts and how responding to this situation could serve as a model for other communities where concentrated job loss is occurring due to plants moving overseas or increasingly consolidating markets.

Sincerely,

Barack Obama

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

August 14, 2008

Dear Senator Obama:

Thank you for your interest in the possible closure of the DHL facility in Wilmington, Ohio that could lead to significant layoffs.

Since early June, the Administration has been working with Senators Brown and Voinovich and Congressman Turner on a coordinated effort in the event this proposed consolidation is completed and assistance is needed. Representatives from the Departments of Labor and Commerce plus the Small Business Administration visited the area on June 29 to brief community leaders on federal assistance capabilities.

The Department of Labor and Ohio's Rapid Response team have laid the groundwork for Rapid Response services to DHL workers in the event of a shutdown. The Department has also worked closely with the state of Ohio to prepare a National Emergency Grant application that would fund special services for affected workers. These preparations will allow a brisk response if layoffs occur.

Simultaneously, the Economic Development Administration at the Department of Commerce has begun to formulate mid- and long-term recovery plans. The agency is hiring a full-time recovery coordinator for Clinton County (Wilmington), who will work from the offices of the Ohio Valley Regional Development Commission for up to three years, collaborating with officials in a three-county area on an economic development plan for the affected region.

One of EDA's immediate goals is to bring to Clinton County community leaders from other areas of the country who have experienced similar economic dislocations, so they can brief local officials on lessons learned on the recovery path. Should layoffs occur, EDA will fund projects ranging from strategic planning to paying for certain public-works investments.

In addition, Small Business Administration senior officials have toured the region and are preparing to aid displaced workers with technical assistance and access to capital to start businesses. SBA regional and field offices have briefed local leaders on SBA's program tools.

As you are aware, on antitrust matters the decision of whether to initiate an investigation must rest wholly with the Department of Justice. Assistant Attorney General Thomas Barnett has recently assured Members of Congress concerned with this case that "whenever a proposed transaction raises significant competition issues, the Antitrust Division conducts a thorough investigation. If the Department determines that a proposed transaction would substantially lessen competition in violation of the antitrust laws, we take appropriate enforcement action."

The action agencies are the Federal leads in all of this. My role is to break logjams and share information, while making it clear to all Federal partners that this large potential dislocation is a serious concern to President Bush.

Please let me know if you'd like additional details from the agencies overseeing this important effort. I'm copying several of your Congressional colleagues who share our interest in the economic future of the Wilmington area.

Sincerely,

Dr. Angela Merkel

Chancellor Merkel:

We are writing to bring a very serious situation involving Deutsche Post World Net and its U.S. subsidiary DHL Express U.S. (collectively "DHL") to your attention. On May 28, DHL announced it intended to cease its business relationship with ABX Air and ASTAR Air Cargo. Instead, DHL announced it intends to enter into a 10-year agreement with United Parcel Service, Inc. ("UPS") for air transportation services, which if consummated, will result in DHL abandoning a hub in Wilmington, Ohio, resulting in the loss of over 8000 direct jobs and tens of thousands of indirect jobs.

DHL's announcement to partner with UPS is problematic for a number of reasons. First, we believe the contemplated business relationship between DHL and UPS raises significant and troubling competition issues. Indeed, we find it very troubling as to why a company in a concentrated market would turn to one of its chief competitors to find cost savings. As a consequence, we are deeply concerned about the potential for anticompetitive conduct to occur, and we have raised these issues with both U.S. and EU competition authorities.

Second, we are concerned that DHL's decision to abandon the Wilmington facility and the surrounding communities will have consequences in the United States beyond the immediate devastating impact to the Wilmington area. Americans are starting to rethink their views on the benefits of global investment and the interconnected global economic system. If DHL's actions towards Wilmington are indicative, continued erosion in public support for international investment and the global economy is the likely result.

You should note that during meetings with government officials, DHL's senior management indicated that the state of Ohio, the Wilmington-area workers, ABX Air, and ASTAR Air Cargo were all high-quality partners in the operation of the Wilmington facility. The stakeholder commitment to DHL also entailed a significant financial component. The state of Ohio, city of Wilmington, and Clinton County have invested over $400 million into the Wilmington area in support of this hub. In spite of all of the substantial stakeholder commitments to DHL, the company plans to abandon Ohio without giving the stakeholders the opportunity to work as trusted partners to help DHL to succeed.

Moreover, DHL's treatment of the stakeholders in recent months can be described as nothing less than appalling considering the long and friendly relationship between our two nations and the businesses that operate in both countries. For example, in what can charitably be described as a major error in protocol, DHL made its announcement about the Wilmington facility while it was hosting the Mayor of Wilmington in Germany. When it made this announcement, DHL gave no advanced notice to Wilmington's Mayor or other Ohio political and business leaders.

We raise this issue with you not only out of concern for the Ohio workers that will be impacted by this decision, but also because we are concerned that such dismissive treatment by such a significant German company will not be easily forgotten in the United States. The situation and DHL's indifference could easily undermine U.S. views on matters such as completing the next stage of the Open Skies, how foreign investment into the United States is viewed, and general U.S.-German trade relations. The attention the DHL proposal has drawn from both Presidential campaigns serves to confirm the urgency of this situation.

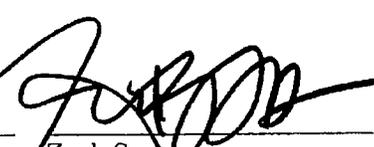

We understand that there is some surprise about the opposition to this transaction. Our reaction should not come as a surprise. In fact, we understand a similar situation arose in Germany related to the closing of a mobile phone manufacturing facility and the loss of German jobs, and the reaction was equally as strong. At a minimum, in the worst-case scenario, we believe DHL has a social obligation to provide substantial assistance with regard to severance packages, health care coverage, and the redevelopment of the Wilmington facility. DHL owns the Wilmington air facility, and we believe it entirely appropriate for DHL to return the airport to the community, provide the requisite assistance for the city to redevelop this important asset, and allow the community to mitigate this devastating loss should DHL decide not to reconsider its decision.

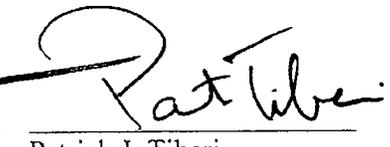

As a result of the concerns we describe above, we believe it is important that you are aware of this situation. We hope that DHL will reconsider this decision and work with its American partners. We would appreciate your bringing to DHL's attention the international aspect of the decision and would be more than happy to work with your designee if you believe it would be helpful.

BROWN CALLS ON BUSH ADMINISTRATION TO CONSIDER PROPOSED DHL DEAL WHEN NEGOTIATING OPEN SKIES

WASHINGTON, DC—U.S. Senator Sherrod Brown (D-OH) today called on the Bush administration to take into account DHL's recent actions as the administration negotiates Stage II of the Open Skies agreement with the European Union. In a letter to Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and Transportation Secretary Mary Peters, Brown urged that they consider DHL's proposal to outsource air cargo services to major competitor UPS when negotiating Open Skies.

"It is important that U.S. negotiators take into account the lessons learned from DHL's actions [when negotiating the Open Skies agreement]," Brown wrote today in a letter to Rice and Peters. "Before the Administration agrees to weaker oversight and regulation over foreign stakeholders who already exert extraordinary influence over U.S. markets and our economy, it is essential that you have adequately assessed the likely impact, both positive and negative, of your actions.

The Bush administration is currently negotiating Stage II of the Open Skies agreement with the European Union, an agreement that would ease restrictions on international air transportation. This includes passenger, cargo, and chartered flights.

Today, Brown called on Rice and Peters to evaluate the effects of the DHL proposal when negotiating the Open Skies agreement. On May 28, DHL's parent company, German-based Deutsche Post World Net (DPWN), announced a proposal to outsource the aviation services currently provided by ABX Air and ASTAR to its competitor UPS.

Brown, along with federal, state, and local officials, is working to save more than 8,000 area jobs that would be lost if DPWN finalizes a deal with UPS. Last month, Brown convened a meeting with Sandy Baruah, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development, on the DHL proposal. In the meeting, Brown and Senator George Voinovich stressed the magnitude of the situation and ways to prevent job loss. They also raised the anti-trust implications of the DHL proposal and requested that the Economic Development Agency assign staff to work on-the-ground in Wilmington. Baruah committed to assigning a full-time employee to work in Wilmington.

Also in July, Brown delivered more than 9,000 petitions to the DHL Director of Hub Operations for Wilmington and unveiled a new DHL page on his Senate Web site. This page serves as a news and information source for families affected by the possible DHL deal. The Web page, on Brown's Senate Web site www.brown.senate.gov, allows visitors to read stories and news about the issue and to submit their own stories. Brown will use the stories to educate his colleagues and continue to raise awareness.

A full copy of Brown's letter to Rice and Peters is below:

*The Honorable Mary Peters
Secretary
Department of Transportation

Washington, DC 20590*

Dear Secretary Rice and Secretary Peters:

As negotiators from the State Department and the Department of Transportation (DOT) plan Stage II of the U.S.-European Union Air Transport Agreement ("Open Skies"), please take into account recent actions by Deutsche Post World Net (DPWN), the German-based parent company of DHL Express U.S. On May 28, DPWN announced that it planned to terminate long-term contracts with U.S.-based express package delivery airlines ABX Air and ASTAR, and to outsource the aviation services provided by those airlines to competitor United Parcel Service (UPS).

The proposed agreement with UPS, if completed, will mean the direct loss of more than 8,000 Ohio jobs and potentially thousands more downstream jobs in the region. Adding insult to injury, the city of Wilmington and the state of Ohio extended more than $400 million in tax incentives to DPWN to solidify the establishment of DHL operations there.

I raise these impending layoffs in Ohio in the context of the next stage of Open Skies talks because it is important that U.S. negotiators take into account the lessons learned from DHL's actions. In 2003, when DHL purchased Airborne Express, DHL said the transaction would: 1) increase profitability and market share for both companies; and 2) enhance free market competition by creating a new entrant into an express delivery market dominated by two major carriers: UPS and FedEx.

Unfortunately, that has not been the experience of DHL in the U.S. market.

Before the Administration agrees to weaker oversight and regulation over foreign stakeholders who already exert extraordinary influence over U.S. markets and our economy, it is essential that you have adequately assessed the likely impact, both positive and negative, of your actions.

U.S. negotiators have cited an analysis conducted by Booz Allen Hamilton to project the creation of 80,000 new jobs in both Europe and the United States through the treaty. That same report cites many other likely economic benefits of Open Skies, but does not highlight a single negative impact, potential or assured, of the Open Skies Initiative. I am confident the Administration is not relying on this single report, prepared not for the U.S. but for the European Commission, to assess the economic implications of this initiative. I request that you provide the other analyses that underlie your pursuit of the Open Skies Initiative.

It may well be that an additional stage of Open Skies with Europe would be a beneficial step for our country, but with DHL threatening to devastate Ohio's economy and reduce competition in the U.S. express carrier market, it is clearly crucial for our nation to enter Open Skies fully informed and with our eyes wide open.

My staff will follow up with you to determine how to minimize the burden on your offices as you convey the analytical information I have requested in this letter. I have appreciated the willingness of the Bush Administration to work with the Ohio delegation on matters surrounding the proposed DHL-UPS deal, and I thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Dear Secretary Rice and Secretary Peters:

As negotiators from the State Department and the Department of Transportation (DOT) plan Stage II of the U.S.-European Union Air Transport Agreement ("Open Skies"), please take into account recent actions by Deutsche Post World Net (DPWN), the German-based parent company of DHL Express U.S. On May 28, DPWN announced that it planned to terminate long-term contracts with U.S.-based express package delivery airlines ABX Air and ASTAR, and to outsource the aviation services provided by those airlines to competitor United Parcel Service (UPS).

The proposed agreement with UPS, if completed, will mean the direct loss of more than 8,000 Ohio jobs and potentially thousands more downstream jobs in the region. Adding insult to injury, the city of Wilmington and the state of Ohio extended more than $400 million in tax incentives to DPWN to solidify the establishment of DHL operations there.

I raise these impending layoffs in Ohio in the context of the next stage of Open Skies talks because it is important that U.S. negotiators take into account the lessons learned from DHL's actions. In 2003, when DHL purchased Airborne Express, DHL said the transaction would: 1) increase profitability and market share for both companies; and 2) enhance free market competition by creating a new entrant into an express delivery market dominated by two major carriers: UPS and FedEx.

Unfortunately, that has not been the experience of DHL in the U.S. market.

Before the Administration agrees to weaker oversight and regulation over foreign stakeholders who already exert extraordinary influence over U.S. markets and our economy, it is essential that you have adequately assessed the likely impact, both positive and negative, of your actions.

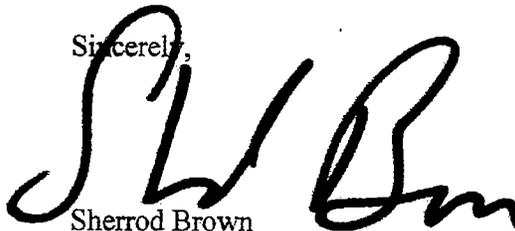

U.S. negotiators have cited an analysis conducted by Booz Allen Hamilton to project the creation of 80,000 new jobs in both Europe and the United States through the treaty.

Dear Assistant Attorney General Barnett and Chairman Kovacic:

On May 28, 2008, DHL Express US ("DHL") and United Parcel Service, Inc. ("UPS") announced their intention to enter into a contract where UPS will become, for ten years, the exclusive provider of air transportation for DHL's North American package delivery service. As the Chairman and Ranking Republican Member of the Senate Antitrust Subcommittee, we believe that this proposed agreement raises important antitrust and competition issues that should be examined carefully by the Department of Justice ("Department") or the Federal Trade Commission ("Commission").

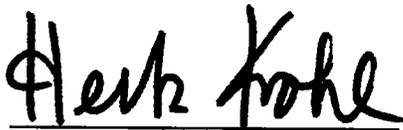

UPS and DHL are, respectively, the second and third largest overnight package delivery services in the United States. Therefore, if consummated, DHL will become reliant for air transportation on one of its two major competitors. This raises the question if DHL will still be able to effectively compete against UPS, since UPS will now have a large role in determining the cost and quality of DHL's services. In addition, we presume that such a relationship would also require DHL to adopt UPS's package tracking, labeling and hub distribution systems. Whether, and how, DHL packages will receive priority should UPS planes fill to capacity is another concern raised by this deal. As a result, some critics of the proposed agreement contend that DHL will become a captive of UPS, rather than an independent competitor. Further, having only two airlines providing national airlift capacity for overnight package delivery could raise the risk of serious economic disruption should service on one of these two airlines be reduced due to unforeseen difficulties, such as a strike, maintenance issues, weather disruptions or other similar disruptive events.

It has been reported that the parties are close to finalizing this agreement. The prospect of a quick ratification is equally disconcerting since the proposed contract will have a devastating financial impact on DHL's current air transport providers, ABX Air and ASTAR and these airlines' base of operations, southern Ohio.

It should be noted that we have not reached a conclusion as to the legality of this proffered transaction under the antitrust laws. However, due to the issues raised above and urgency of this matter, we respectfully request that the antitrust agencies initiate an investigation into this arrangement immediately.

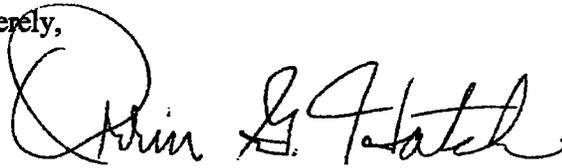

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Sincerely,

SATURDAY INTERVIEW

For Deliveries, Speed Not Quite of the Essence

By ELIZABETH OLSON

HIGH fuel prices and a sluggish economy have taken a toll on overnight delivery services, forcing some significant shifts in how the biggest operators do business. DHL Express, the country's third-biggest overnight deliverer, recently hired a rival, United Parcel Service, to handle its air cargo operations in the United States.

While its global business is profitable, the American segment of DHL, acquired in 2002 by Deutsche Post of Germany, is expected to lose $1.3 billion this year.

In an interview from DHL's American headquarters in Plantation, Fla., its chief executive, John P. Mullen, discussed the deal with U.P.S.

Q. What factors drove you to make a deal with U.P.S.?

A. The cost of maintaining our network in the United States has been very painful to us, and it's been exacerbated by the increasing fuel costs. Under the arrangement with U.P.S., if our volume should continue to fall, our costs fall with it. And we have 110 aircraft in the United States, a lot of which are quite old and will need replacement in the coming years. So we avoid that capital expenditure.

Q. What kind of impact have fuel costs had?

A. Very considerable. First, the straight cost burden, and our fuel surcharge does not cover all of it. But more importantly, it starts changing a customer's behavior. When you say there's a surcharge of 5 percent or 10 percent, they read the newspapers and they know fuel is going up. But when you start talking 30 percent and up, which is what we've got at the moment, the customer starts saying: "Well, do I really need the package there tomorrow morning at 10:30?"

Q. Has that translated into less demand for air service?

A. We're seeing that customers are downgrading their service expectations, from air to ground. And once customers change, it's pretty hard to get them to come back again. And even if fuel prices were to come down significantly, we're not sure customers would revert to urgent air express. Our whole industry is going to have to adjust because, while it may not be tomorrow, we're going to see huge amounts of our revenue migrate to ground and other forms of transport.

Q. By outsourcing your air cargo services to a rival, where does that leave the company? What is the business model now — more ground and less air?

A. Our business model hasn't changed. We're still picking up the package, we're still delivering it. But instead of giving it to one operator who is flying just for us, we're giving it to U.P.S., which, although it is a competitor, is just a service provider. The customers wouldn't actually know whether we used U.P.S. or someone else for the air segment.

Q. What was the price of this deal?

A. U.P.S. will charge us about a billion dollars a year to move our material. Our savings, taking into account other restructuring, including closing 30 percent of our ground stations in the United States, will save us about a billion dollars a year.

Q. How many jobs will you be cutting?

A. We're cutting 1,500 to 1,800 of our own employees, including some at our air hub in Wilmington, Ohio. And these changes will have an impact on our suppliers, which will mean several thousand more jobs will be affected. Our cuts will come in smaller towns, and we'll close stations where there are several in the same area.

Q. What percentage of your business will be affected by these changes?

A. We're estimating that these changes, while they sound fairly large, will only have an impact on about 4 percent of our shipments. In other words, 4 percent of our shipments will go from early morning delivery to maybe afternoon delivery. We'll still be delivering them, but they will be slightly slower than before, but only a small percent.

Q. How does this affect the general landscape in the United States for deliveries?

A. It shouldn't make any appreciable difference, and while the deal should make us both more productive, we remain full-tilt competitors. In the rest of the world, in Europe, Asia and emerging economies — where we are in a much stronger position — we are trying to make life as difficult as possible for them.

Q. How much of a decline in daily package volume have you seen because of the economy slumping?

A. Some customers are not sending altogether. But most are trying to find a cheaper way, such as sending it by ground. We've got the double impact right now of fuel costs and the economic recession because we carry an awful lot of mortgage documents, contracts and so on, and that side of our business is very significantly under pressure. Air express overnight volumes in the industry are down anywhere from 5 percent to 15 percent from this time last year.

Q. When will the new arrangement go into effect?

A. We hope to have a completed agreement with U.P.S. in a couple of months, and we would start to migrate volume across. We would like to see it all in place by mid- to late 2009. But at the end of the year, our busiest season since stores and other parts of industry are ramping up, we will slacken off and try not to make too many changes until the new year.
