similar to that provided in the Federal Employees Compensation Act. This section provides for relief previously provided for only by private bill.

Persons employed by a Government contractor who suffer injury in the performance of their duties must look to the contractor for compensation. In a few rare instances, the committee has favorably considered claims for compensation by contract employees. One was the claim of a contract mail carrier, injured by the negligent overloading of mail sacks by Government employees. Another was himself performing hazardous work under a contract with the Forest Service when he sustained injury. Two more were victims of attempted mail robberies. Of these, one was a contract carrier, the other was employed by a fourth-class postmaster and suffered severe injuries in successfully defending the post office and its contents against four armed bandits. These cases were regarded as involving unique factual situations which provided grounds for distinguishing between their merits and those of claims by persons employed by the average Government contractor.

MISCELLANEOUS

In past years, the committee has considered claims for the difference in value of purebred cows slaughtered, in the Government's disease-elimination program, as grade animals, prior to their registration as purebred; for the full value of land conveyed to the Government in an instance where payment was originally made on the basis of an erroneous survey of the tract by the Government; for personal injury suffered while assisting a United States officer in law enforcement; for one-half of a judgment recovered against a municipality by the estate of a deceased employee, killed through the joint negligence of the municipality and the Government; authorizing the cashing of two paychecks on behalf of the widow of a Government agent who disappeared while performing official duty, on the seven-year-absence death presumption; for expenses incurred in preparing to carry the mail under an awarded contract which was later canceled; for damage to property occupied, with the Government's assent, by so-called "bonus marchers"; for the refund of an inheritance tax, due the State of Pennsylvania but erroneously paid to the Federal Government; for the refund of Federal tax collected on gas furnished the Government under a contract.

The subcommittee also has jurisdiction over public claims legislation. For example, the subcommittee has considered bills amending the Federal tort claims provisions of title 28, United States Code, bills amending the military claims provisions of chapter 163 of title 10, United States Code, and other public bills concerning claims and claims procedure.

Although examples of bills considered by the subcommittee or coming within committee jurisdiction and policy have been discussed herein, other points may arise in connection with some proposed bills, and the committee suggests that the author of such a bill consider discussing the matter with the subcommittee staff. Should there be a question concerning the jurisdiction of the committee over the subject matter, it is suggested that the author of the bill contact the Parliamentarian of the House prior to introduction of the bill.

priation existed from which payment could be made. In a few cases, the payment of rewards for services rendered in apprehending law violators, usually of postal laws, has been authorized. It should be noted, however, that the offering and payment of rewards is vested in the Attorney General, the Postmaster General, and other department heads with respect to enforcement of laws administered by their departments, and special legislation is usually not warranted.

Payments have also been made for services rendered in developing a national forest; for rescues at sea of Government officers or employees; for the preparation of ship-construction plans; of preparation for burial and transportation of the body of an employee who died abroad while on official duty; for transportation of employees on official business (where the expense has been held unauthorized under existing law); for fees earned as a United States commissioner, probation officer, or doctor attached to a Federal prison, after expiration of a previous appointment.

SUPPLIES OR GOODS FURNISHED THE GOVERNMENT

Claims for supplies or goods furnished to the Government, as well as for use or loss of property loaned it, have at times been recognized in bills providing for payment for such services or goods. The history of claims before the committee indicate that such bills provided for payments for meat furnished to the Forest Service; trucks furnished to the Army; submarine valves furnished to the Navy; horses, cows, and other property leased or gratuitously bailed to the Government, and thereafter lost, through death or other cause, as result of negligent care; coal supplied under a contract which was later canceled; and also cases of furnishing both material and labor under construction controls. However, Government procurement contracts and construction contracts are governed by public laws on that subject and their implementing regulations. Only in most unusual instances has it been found appropriate to grant relief through private legislation.

As has just been observed, the Government usually obtains services, supplies, goods, or property under a contract or lease. Payment of claims of this class has, in unusual cases, required private legislation because the equities of the case justified relief and there was no right of suit against the Government, for legal or other reasons. Rule 11 requiring that claimant exhaust his remedies elsewhere prior to seeking relief from the Congress, as well as the matter previously set forth with respect to contract claims, should be kept in mind by one who desires to determine what the committee's attitude may be with respect to claims of this class.

GOVERNMENT WARDS, PRISONERS, AND CONTRACT EMPLOYEES

A statement concerning Government wards and prisoners is included in this booklet since, in past Congresses, several private bills were enacted compensating some of such persons for personal injuries sustained while performing work of which the Government received the benefit. Those included bills concerning pupils at Indian schools. They learn trades as part of their instruction and also perform duties at the school. Occasionally, injuries have occurred while performing their duties or in the course of their instruction with machinery, and the Congress has, by special act, provided compensation for those injured. Again, inmates of the Federal reformatories and prisons are required to work in shops, and the product of their labor goes to the Government. Under section 4126 of title 18, United States Code, there is provision for the payment of compensation to prisoners or their dependents for injuries suffered in any prison industry or in work in connection with maintenance or operation of the institution where confined. This provision provides for payments in a manner somewhat the Government has not been damaged by the defendant's failure to appear.

Bills seeking a refund of fees or fines have also been considered. Numerous claims for the refund of taxes, duties, and other revenue overpaid to the Government have been presented, both in past Congresses and the present. Each of these cases involved a waiver of the statute of limitations contained in all revenue laws, which stood as a bar to claimant's recovery, thus necessitating legislation for its waiver or for outright refund incidentally effecting the waiver. The subcommittee has usually required that it be established that relief should be extended because of unusual and compelling equities. For instance, it would be necessary to prove that such a waiver is justified in a unique case, such as where a claimant had been misled by Government agents in payment of the revenue, or as to his right to refund, or had apparently taken every possible precaution to protect his rights but nevertheless lost to the Government upon its assertion that the statute had expired. In other words, the situation was something more than a simple overpayment—of which there are thousands—the collection of which was precluded by the statute of limitations.

While not a subject of private bills in recent years, fees coming into the hands of fiscal officers of the Government and erroneously covered into the Treasury have been refunded by special legislation. Several bills refunding fines paid under the Lever Act of August 10, 1917, subsequently declared unconstitutional in part by the Supreme Court were enacted.

ADJUSTMENT AND SETTLEMENT OF ACCOUNTS

Bills proposing the adjustment and settlement of accounts of disbursing officers, postmasters, or other fiscal agents of the United States have been considered by the subcommittee. Such bills generally involve in appropriation of money unless the officer has been required to refund it to the Government, in which event appropriation for payment to him will be necessary. If there has been no refund, the correct action is to authorize and direct the Comptroller General of the United States (not the Secretary of the Treasury, Postmaster General, or other official) to credit, or allow credit, in the officer's account and the bills should so read. Fiscal officers are often necessarily held responsible for losses which they neither contributed to or occasioned. Bills granting relief have been favorably considered where good faith and an absence of negligence can be shown. Bills have been approved which validated unauthorized expenditures for goods or services from which the Government benefited substantially. Similarly, fiscally or certifying personnel have been granted relief in some cases for loss of funds and property; for payments made with or without higher authority, but subsequently held to be unauthorized by law; and for account shortages to overpayments, embezzlements by subordinates, post office robberies, and other losses. Aside from the mentioned good faith and absence of negligence, no general rule relative to allowance of relief in this class of claims can be laid down, but it has been granted or denied in accordance with the particular facts and circumstances in each case.

SERVICES PERFORMED FOR THE GOVERNMENT

All claims for services rendered to the Government, either as a volunteer or under some legal right or authority are cognizable by the committee, with the exception of those which can be administratively determined and settled (by the departments or the General Accounting Office in accordance with existing law). Payments have been authorized where employees were hired and performed work but were not paid because the hiring was without legal authority or no appro-

GUIDING PRINCIPLES IN SPECIFIC CATEGORIES OF CLAIMS

CONTRACT CLAIMS

When based on equitable considerations, contract claims have been considered by the subcommittee. Claims based upon a contract, either express or implied, are cognizable by the United States Court of Federal Claims. The statutory provisions concerning the administrative and judicial settlement of disputes and claims arising from contracts provide the usual basis for final resolution of such matters. The Contract Disputes Act enacted in 1978 and set out as chapter 9 of title 41, United States Code, under the heading "Contract Disputes," provides the statutory basis for government-wide procedures for the administrative and judicial resolution of such disputes. This law originated as a bill considered by the subcommittee. It should be noted that many of the contract claims presented to the committee have been rejected for failure to take advantage of an existing remedy, by suit or otherwise, as prescribed by committee rule 14.

While the Congress may enact special legislation for the payment of claims on what the Supreme Court has termed "moral grounds," it is here emphasized that the matters are considered by the subcommittee in the light of settled legal or equitable principles, and relief will be granted only when the relief is consistent with such principles.

JURISDICTIONAL BILLS

These are bills conferring jurisdiction for the determination of a claim to a court or tribunal when jurisdiction does not exist under general law. In the past, the committee has considered bills to confer jurisdiction on a court for the determination of a claim for the taking of private lands for public use; for confiscation and illegal sale of property; for the value of services rendered the Government under a contract; for salary wrongfully withheld from an employee; for damage to property; for personal injury and death not covered by the tort claims provisions of title 28, United States Code; and for determination of equitable relief allegedly due under a contract.

It is relevant to note that the Federal tort claims provisions of title 28 provide a broad area of jurisdiction in the Federal courts over claims which, before the enactment of the Federal Tort Claims Act, were proper subjects for private bills.

REFUNDS—BONDS, FEES, FINES, AND OTHER AMOUNTS PAID TO THE GOVERNMENT

The refund of money wrongfully or erroneously covered into the Treasury has at times been the subject of bills considered by the subcommittee. These may include refunds of the value of a bond, either criminal or alien, forfeited to the Government. Bonds are exacted for the performance of some act, usually the appearance of an accused in a criminal case, or the appearance or deportation of an alien in immigration proceedings. A failure to comply with their terms constitutes a breach resulting in forfeiture. It has been required that the appeal for relief be grounded on more than an assertion of the fact of forfeiture and subsequent apprehension of the criminal or alien by the Government, coupled with an argument that the Government should not thus enrich itself at the bondsman's expense. In past years consideration has been given such factors as: Information showing that claimant is not a professional bondsman (received a consideration for his undertaking); that the defendant has been apprehended; that claimant contributed either funds or acts to such apprehension; and that

§ 2651. Recovery by United States

(a) Conditions; exceptions; persons liable; amount of recovery; subrogation; assignment

In any case in which the United States is authorized or required by law to furnish hospital, medical, surgical, or dental care and treatment (including prostheses and medical appliances) to a person who is injured or suffers a disease, after the effective date of this Act, under circumstances creating a tort liability upon some third person (other than or in addition to the United States and except employers of seamen treated under the provisions of section 249 of this title) to pay damages therefor, the United States shall have a right to recover from said third person the reasonable value of the care and treatment so furnished or to be furnished and shall, as to this right be subrogated to any right or claim that the injured or diseased person, his guardian, personal representative, estate, dependents, or survivors has against such third person to the extent of the reasonable value of the care and treatment so furnished or to be furnished. The head of the department or agency of the United States furnishing such care or treatment may also require the injured or diseased person, his guardian, personal representative, estate, dependents, or survivors, as appropriate, to assign his claim or cause of action against the third person to the extent of that right or claim.

(b) Enforcement procedure; intervention; joinder of parties; State or Federal court proceedings

The United States may, to enforce such right, (1) intervene or join in any action or proceeding brought by the injured or diseased person, his guardian, personal representative, estate, dependents, or survivors, against the third person who is liable for the injury or disease; or (2) if such action or proceeding is not commenced within six months after the first day in which care and treatment is furnished by the United States in connection with the injury or disease involved, institute and prosecute legal proceedings against the third person who is liable for the injury or disease, in State or Federal court, either alone (in its own name or in the name of the injured person, his guardian, personal representative, estate, dependents, or survivors) or in conjunction with the injured or diseased person, his guardian, personal representative, estate, dependents, or survivors.

(3) it is not for personal injury or death of such a member or a person employed under section 709 of this title, whose injury or death is incident to his service;

(4) the damage to, or loss of, property, or the personal injury or death, was not caused wholly or partly by a negligent or wrongful act of the claimant, his agent, or his employee, or, if so caused, allowed only to the extent that the law of the place where the act or omission complained of occurred would permit recovery from a private individual under like circumstances; and

(5) it is substantiated as prescribed in regulations of the Secretary concerned.

For the purposes of clause (1), the dates of the beginning and end of an armed conflict are the dates established by concurrent resolution of Congress or by a determination of the President.

(c) Payment may not be made under this section for reimbursement for medical, hospital, or burial services furnished at the expense of the United States or of any State or the District of Columbia or Puerto Rico.

(d) If the Secretary concerned considers that a claim in excess of $100,000 is meritorious, and the claim otherwise is payable under this section, the Secretary may pay the claimant $100,000 and report any meritorious amount in excess of $100,000 to the Comptroller General for payment under section 1304 of title 31.

(e) Except as provided in subsection (d), no claim may be paid under this section unless the amount tendered is accepted by the claimant in full satisfaction.

(f) Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary concerned, an officer or employee under the jurisdiction of the Secretary may settle a claim that otherwise would be payable under this section in an amount not to exceed $25,000. A decision of the officer or employee who makes a final settlement decision under this section may be appealed by the claimant to the Secretary concerned or an officer or employee designated by the Secretary for that purpose.

(g) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the settlement of a claim under this section is final and conclusive.

(h) In this section, "settle" means consider, ascertain, adjust, determine, and dispose of a claim, whether by full or partial allowance or disallowance.

(2) personal injury or death;

(2) personal injury or death;

Transportation shall be made out of the appropriations for the operating expenses of the Coast Guard. The appropriations referred to in this subsection may be used to buy foreign currencies required for the reimbursement or payment.

(g) Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary concerned, an officer or employee under the jurisdiction of the Secretary may settle a claim that otherwise would be payable under this section in an amount not to exceed $25,000. Should a United States district court determine on a hearing on a motion to remand held before a trial on the merits that the employee whose act or omission gave rise to the suit was not acting within the scope of such person's office or employment, the case shall be remanded to the State court.

(d) The Attorney General may compromise or settle any claim asserted in such civil action or proceeding in the manner provided in section 2677 of title 28, and with the same effect.

(e) The Secretary may, to the extent the Secretary considers appropriate, hold harmless or provide liability insurance of any person to whom the immunity provisions of this section apply (as described in subsection (a)), for damage for personal injury or death, or for property damage, negligently caused by such person while furnishing medical care or treatment (including the conduct of clinical studies or investigations) in the exercise of such person's duties in or for the Administration, if such person is assigned to a foreign country, detailed to State or political division thereof, or is acting under any other circumstances which would preclude the remedies of an injured third person against the United States, provided by sections 1346(b) and 2672 of title 28, for such damage or injury.

(f) The exception provided in section 2680(h) of title 28 shall not apply to any claim arising out of a negligent or wrongful act or omission of any person described in subsection (a) in furnishing medical care or treatment (including medical care or treatment furnished in the course of a clinical study or investigation) while in the exercise of such person's duties in or for the Administration.

HISTORICAL NOTE

On October 19, 1984, H.R. 5167, the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985, was approved as Public Law 98–525. Section 1631 of that Act (42 U.S.C. 2212) concerned contractor liability for injury or loss of property arising out of atomic weapons testing programs. On November 5, 1990, H.R. 4739, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, was approved as Public Law 101–510. Section 3140 of that Act repealed section 1631 of the earlier Act, but section 3141 of the 1990 Act re-enacted it with a new title (the "Atomic Testing Liability Act") and some minor technical changes. The Atomic Testing Liability Act provides that the remedy provided by sections 1346(b) and 2672 of title 28, United States Code, or by the Act of March 9, 1920 (46 U.S.C. App. 741–752) or by the Act of March 3, 1925 (46 U.S.C. App. 781–790), as appropriate, for injury, loss of property, personal injury, or death, shall apply to any civil action arising from such injury or death based on the acts or omissions by a contractor carrying out a contract with the United States for an atomic weapons testing program. The remedy therein provided is to be exclusive of any other civil action or proceeding arising from any act or omission of the contractor, without regard to

ATOMIC TESTING LIABILITY ACT

In 1984, section 1631 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act of 1985 (P.L. 98-525), (otherwise known as the "Warner Amendment") was enacted. This provision in title 42 removed any liability from government contractors for injuries resulting from atomic weapons testing programs. It then substituted the United States as the potentially liable party in such cases, under the provisions of the Federal Tort Claims Act.

In 1990, section 3140 of the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 1991 (P.L. 101-510) repealed the Warner Amendment, but section 3141 of the 1990 Act re-enacted it with a new title (the "Atomic Testing Liability Act") and some minor technical changes. The provision is found in the U.S. Code where the repealed provision used to be: 42 U.S.C. 2212.

Former Court of Claims Jurisdiction Over Appeals of Final Judgments in Tort Actions.

(The section as contained in the Act of June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 942, provided that Court of Claims would have jurisdiction to review by appeal final judgments in the district courts in civil actions based on tort claims brought under section 1346(b) of this title if the notice of appeal filed in the district court had affixed thereto the written consent on behalf of all the appellees that the appeal be taken to the court of Claims.)

HISTORICAL NOTE

This section was based upon provisions of the original Tort Claims Act as enacted on August 2, 1946. Section 412(a)(2) of that Act (ch. 753, 60 Stat. 844) contained those provisions which were revised and included in this section at the time of the enactment of codified title 28, United States Code, on June 25, 1948. At that time a sentence of the original law was omitted. It provided that in tort claims appeals to the Court of Claims, that court should have the same powers and duties as those of a court of appeals. These powers and duties were viewed as being inherent in the provisions of this section conferring appellate jurisdiction.

(c) The Attorney General shall defend any civil action or proceeding brought in any court against any employee of the Government or his estate for any such damage or injury. The employee against whom such civil action or proceeding is brought shall deliver within such time after date of service or knowledge of service as determined by the Attorney General, all process served upon him or an attested true copy thereof to his immediate superior or to whomever was designated by the head of his department to receive such papers and such person shall promptly furnish copies of the pleadings and process therein to the United States Attorney for the district embracing the place wherein the proceeding is brought, to the Attorney General, and to the head of his employing Federal agency.

(d)(1) Upon certification by the Attorney General that the defendant employee was acting within the scope of his office or employment at the time of the incident out of which the claim arose, any civil action or proceeding commenced upon such claim in a United States district court shall be deemed an action against the United States under the provisions of this title and all references thereto, and the United States shall be substituted as the party defendant.

(2) Upon certification by the Attorney General that the defendant employee was acting within the scope of his office or employment at the time of the incident out of which the claim arose, any civil action or proceeding commenced upon such claim in a State court shall be removed without bond at any time before trial by the Attorney General to the district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place in which the action or proceeding is pending. Such action or proceeding shall be deemed to be an action or proceeding brought against the United States under the provisions of this title and all references thereto, and the United States shall be substituted as the party defendant. This certification of the Attorney General shall conclusively establish scope of office or employment for purposes of removal.

With respect to any claim to which this section applies, the Tennessee Valley Authority shall be entitled to assert any defense which otherwise would have been available to the employee based upon judicial or legislative immunity, which otherwise would have been available to the employee of the Tennessee Valley Authority whose act or omission gave rise to the claim as well as any other defenses to which the Tennessee Valley Authority is entitled under this chapter.

(June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 983; Nov. 18, 1988, Pub. L. 100–694, § 4 and § 9, 102 Stat. 4564 and 4567.)

§ 2675. Disposition by Federal agency as prerequisite; evidence

(a) An action shall not be instituted upon a claim against the United States for money damages for injury or loss of property or personal injury or death caused by the negligent or wrongful act or omission of any employee of the Government while acting within the scope of his office or employment, unless the claimant shall have first presented the claim to the appropriate Federal agency and his claim shall have been finally denied by the agency in writing and sent by certified or registered mail. The failure of an agency to make final disposition of a claim within 6 months after it is filed shall, at the option of the claimant any time thereafter, be deemed a final denial of the claim for purposes of this section. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to such claims as may be asserted under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure by third party complaint, crossclaim, or counterclaim.

(b) Action under this section shall not be instituted for any sum in excess of the amount of the claim presented to the federal agency, except where the increased amount is based upon newly discovered evidence not reasonably discovered at the time of presenting the claim to the federal agency, or upon allegation and proof of intervening facts, relating to the amount of the claim.

(c) Disposition of any claim by the Attorney General or other head of a federal agency shall not be competent evidence of liability or amount of damages.

(June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 983; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 126, 63 Stat. 107; July 18, 1966, Pub. L. 89–506, § 2, 80 Stat. 306.)

§ 2676. Judgment as bar

The judgment in an action under section 1346(b) of this title shall constitute a complete bar to any action by claimant, by reason of the same subject matter, against the employee of the government whose act or omission gave rise to the claim.

(June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 984.)

§ 2677. Compromise

The Attorney General or his designee may arbitrate, compromise, or settle any claim cognizable under section 1346(b) of this title, after the commencement of an action thereon.

(June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 984; July 18, 1966, Pub. L. 89–506, § 3, 80 Stat. 307.)

§ 2678. Attorney fees; penalty

No attorney shall charge, demand, receive, or collect for services rendered, fees in excess of 25 per centum of any judgment rendered pursuant to section 1346(b) of this title or any settlement made pursuant to section 2677 of this title, or in excess of 20 per centum of any award, compromise, or settlement made pursuant to section 2672 of this title.

Any attorney who charges, demands, receives, or collects for services rendered in connection with such claim any amount in excess of contained in the preceding sentence, any award, compromise, or settlement may be effected without the prior written approval of the Attorney General or his or her designee, to the extent that the Attorney General delegates to the head of the agency the authority to make such award, compromise, or settlement. Such delegations may not exceed the authority delegated by the Attorney General to the United States attorneys to settle claims for money damages against the United States. Each Federal agency may use arbitration, or other alternative means of dispute resolution under the provisions of subchapter IV of chapter 5 of title 5, to settle any tort claim against the United States, to the extent of the agency's authority to award, compromise, or settle such claim without the prior written approval of the Attorney General or his or her designee.

Any award, compromise, or settlement in an amount of $2,500 or less made pursuant to this section shall be paid by the head of the Federal agency concerned out of appropriations available to that agency. Payment of any award, compromise, or settlement in an amount in excess of $2,500 made pursuant to this section or made by the Attorney General in any amount pursuant to section 2677 of this title shall be paid in a manner similar to judgments and compromises in like causes and appropriations or funds available for the payment of such judgments and compromises are hereby made available for the payment of awards, compromises, or settlements under this chapter.

The acceptance by the claimant of any such award, compromise, or settlement shall be final and conclusive on the claimant, and shall constitute a complete release of any claim against the United States and against the employee of the Government whose act or omission gave rise to the claim, by reason of the same subject matter.

(The section as contained in the Act of June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 983, required that the head of each Federal agency shall report annually to Congress all claims paid by it under section 2672 of this title, stating the name of each claimant, the amount claimed, the amount awarded, and a brief description of the claim.)

§ 2674. Liability of United States

The United States shall be liable, respecting the provisions of this title relating to tort claims, in the same manner and to the same extent as a private individual under like circumstances, but shall not be liable for interest prior to judgment or for punitive damages.

If, however, in any case wherein death was caused, the law of the place where the act or omission complained of occurred provides, or has been construed to provide, for damages only punitive in nature, the United States shall be liable for actual or compensatory damages, measured by the pecuniary injuries resulting from such death to the persons respectively, for whose benefit the action was brought, in lieu thereof.

With respect to any claim under this chapter, the United States shall be entitled to assert any defense based upon judicial or legislative immunity which otherwise would have been available to the employee of the United States whose act or omission gave rise to the claim, as well as any other defenses to which the United States is entitled.

FEDERAL TORT CLAIMS ACT

The provisions of the Federal Tort Claims Act (act of Aug. 2, 1946, 60 Stat. 842) have been restated and codified as a part of title 28 of the United States Code. Title 28 was enacted into positive law by the act of June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 1, 62 Stat. 869. Since the provisions of the Tort Claims Act as originally enacted have been superseded by the tort claims provisions now contained in the codified title, the relevant provisions of title 28 are included in this booklet. Those sections are as follows:

§ 1346. United States as defendant

For the purpose of this paragraph, an express or implied contract with the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Navy Exchanges, Marine Corps Exchanges, Coast Guard Exchanges, or Exchange Councils of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shall be considered an express or implied contract with the United States.

(b) Subject to the provisions of chapter 171 of this title, the district courts, together with the U.S. district court for the District of the Canal Zone and the district court of the Virgin Islands, shall have ex-

* * * * * * *

§ 5302. Waiver of recovery of claims by the United States

(a) There shall be no recovery of payments or overpayments (or any interest thereon) of any benefits under any of the laws administered by the Secretary whenever the Secretary determines that recovery would be against equity and good conscience, if an application for relief is made within 180 days from the date of notification of the indebtedness by the Secretary to the payee, or within such longer period as the Secretary determines is reasonable in a case in which the payee demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that such notification was not actually received by such payee within a reasonable period after such date. The Secretary shall include in the notification to the payee a statement of the right of the payee to submit an application for a waiver under this subsection and a description of the procedures for submitting the application.

(b) With respect to any loan guaranteed, insured, or made under chapter 37 of this title, the Secretary shall, except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, waive payment of an indebtedness to the Department by the veteran (as defined in sections 101, 3701, and 3702(a)(2)(C)(ii) of this title), or his spouse, following default and loss of the property, where the Secretary determines that collection of such indebtedness would be against equity and good conscience. An application for relief under this subsection must be made within one year after the date on which the veteran receives notice by certified mail from the Secretary of the indebtedness. The Secretary shall include in the notification a statement of the right of the veteran to submit an application for a waiver under this subsection and a description of the procedures for submitting the application.

(c) The recovery of any payment or the collection of any indebtedness (or any interest thereon) may be waived under this section if, in the opinion, there exists in connection with the claim for such waiver an indication of fraud, misrepresentation, or bad faith on the part of

(TITLE 32.—NATIONAL GUARD)

(C) the waiver is made in accordance with standards which the Comptroller General shall prescribe.

(b) The Comptroller General or the Secretary concerned, as the case may be, may not exercise his authority under this section to waive any claim—

(1) if, in his opinion, there exists, in connection with the claim, an indication of fraud, misrepresentation, fault, or lack of good faith on the part of the member or any other person having an interest in obtaining a waiver of the claim; or

(2) if application for waiver is received in his office after the expiration of three years immediately following the date on which the erroneous payment was discovered.

(c) A person who has repaid to the United States all or part of the amount of a claim, with respect to which a waiver is granted under this section, is entitled, to the extent of the waiver, to refund, by the department concerned at the time of the erroneous payment, of the amount repaid to the United States, if he applies to that department for that refund within two years following the effective date of the waiver. The Secretary concerned shall pay from current applicable appropriations that refund in accordance with this section.

(d) In the audit and settlement of accounts of any accountable officer or official, full credit shall be given for any amounts with respect to which collection by the United States is waived under this section.

(C) the waiver is made in accordance with standards which the Comptroller General shall prescribe.

WAIVER OF CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

The jurisdiction of the committee includes proposed legislation, in the form of both public and private bills, which would relieve individuals of obligations to the United States. Administrative authority to waive certain obligations have been granted in a number of laws. Representative provisions of law are set forth below.

(TITLE 5.—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS-OFFICERS-EMPLOYEES)

(Chapter 55, Subchapter VIII)

§ 5584. Claims for overpayment of pay and allowances, and of travel transportation and relocation expenses and allowances

(a) A claim of the United States against a person arising out of an erroneous payment of pay or allowances made on or after July 1, 1960, or arising out of an erroneous payment of travel, transportation or relocation expenses and allowances, to an employee of an agency, the collection of which would be against equity and good conscience and not in the best interests of the United States, may be waived in whole or in part by—

(1) the Comptroller General of the United States; or

(2) the head of the agency when—

(A) the claim is in an amount aggregating not more than $1,500;

(B) the claim is not the subject of an exception made by the Comptroller General in the account of any accountable official; and

(C) the waiver is made in accordance with standards which the Comptroller General shall prescribe.

(b) The Comptroller General or the head of the agency, as the case may be, may not exercise his authority under this section to waive any claim—

(1) if, in his opinion, there exists, in connection with the claim, an indication of fraud, misrepresentation, fault, or lack of good faith on the part of the employee or any other person having an interest in obtaining a waiver of the claim;

"In the consideration of any omnibus bill the proceedings as set forth above shall have the same force and effect as if each Senate and House bill or resolution therein contained or referred to were considered by the House as a separate and distinct bill or resolution."

CONGRESSIONAL REFERENCE CASES

Sections 1492 and 2509 of title 28 of the United States Code authorize either House of Congress to refer bills to the chief judge of the United States Court of Federal Claims and provide that the chief judge shall report the findings of fact and conclusion in each case to the House which made the reference. The sections are as follows:

§ 1492. Congressional reference cases

Any bill, except a bill for a pension, may be referred by either House of Congress to the chief judge of the United States Court of Federal Claims for a report in conformity with section 2509 of this title.

(June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 941; Oct. 15, 1966, Pub. L. 89–681, § 1, 80 Stat. 958; Apr. 2, 1982, Pub. L. 97–164, title I, § 133(b), 96 Stat. 40; Oct. 29, 1992, Pub. L. 102–572, § 902(a)(1), 106 Stat. 4516.)

(a) Whenever a bill, except a bill for a pension, is referred by either House of Congress to the chief judge of the United States Court of Federal Claims pursuant to section 1492 of this title, the chief judge shall designate a judge as hearing officer for the case and a panel of three judges of the court to serve as a reviewing body. One member of the review panel shall be designated as presiding officer of the panel.

(b) Proceedings in a congressional reference case shall be under rules and regulations prescribed for the purpose by the chief judge who is hereby authorized and directed to require the application of the pertinent rules of practice of the Court of Federal Claims insofar as feasible. Each hearing officer and each review panel shall have authority to do and perform any acts which may be necessary or proper for the efficient performance of their duties, including the power of subpoena and the power to administer oaths and affirmations. One of the rules, rulings, findings, or conclusions authorized by this section shall be subject to judicial review.

(c) The hearing officer to whom a congressional reference case is assigned by the chief judge shall proceed in accordance with the applicable rules to determine the facts, including facts relating to delay or laches, facts bearing upon the question whether the bar of any statute of limitation should be removed, or facts claimed to excuse the claimant for not having resorted to any established legal remedy. He shall append to his findings of fact conclusions sufficient to inform Congress whether the demand is a legal or equitably claim or a gratuity, and the amount, if any, legally or equitably due from the United States to the claimant.

(d) The findings and conclusions of the hearing officer shall be submitted by him, together with the record in the case, to the review panel for review by it pursuant to such rules as may be provided for the purpose, which shall include provision for submitting the report of the hearing officer to the parties for consideration, exception, and argument before the panel. The panel, by majority vote, shall adopt or modify the findings or the conclusions of the hearing officer.

(e) The panel shall submit its report to the chief judge for transmission to the appropriate House of Congress.

(f) Any act or failure to act or other conduct by a party, a witness, or an attorney which would call for the imposition of sanctions under

Clause 3, Rule XXII:

"3. Any petition or memorial or private bill excluded under this rule shall be returned to the Member from whom it was received; and petitions and private bills which have been inappropriately referred may, by the direction of the committee having possession of the same be properly referred in the manner originally presented; and an erroneous reference of a petition or private bill under this clause shall not confer jurisdiction upon the committee to consider or report the same."

Private Calendar

Clause 1, Rule XIII:

"1. There shall be three calendars to which all business reported from committees shall be referred, viz.:

* * * * *

"Third. A calendar of the Committee of the Whole House, to which shall be referred all bills of a private character."

Call of the Private Calendar

Clause 6, Rule XXIV:

"6. On the first Tuesday of each month after disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only, the Speaker shall direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar. Should objection be made by two or more Members to the consideration of any bill or resolution so called, it shall be recommitted to the committee which reported the bill or resolution, and no reservation of objection shall be entertained by the Speaker. Such bills and resolutions, if considered, shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. No other business shall be in order on this day unless the House, by two-thirds vote on motion to dispense therewith, shall otherwise determine. On such motion debate shall be limited to 5 minutes for and 5 minutes against said motion.

"On the third Tuesday of each month after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only, the Speaker may direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar preference to be given to omnibus bills containing bills or resolutions which have previously been objected to on a call of the Private Calendar. All bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar so called, if considered, shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Should objection be made by two or more Members to the consideration of any bill or resolution other than an omnibus bill, it shall be recommitted to the committee which reported the bill or resolution and no reservation of objection shall be entertained by the Speaker."

[Omnibus Bills]

"Omnibus bills shall be read for amendment by paragraph, and no amendment shall be in order except to strike out or to reduce amounts of money stated or to provide limitations. Any item or matter stricken from an omnibus bill shall not thereafter during the same session of Congress be included in any omnibus bill.

"Upon passage of any such omnibus bill, said bill shall be resolved into the several bills and resolutions of which it is composed, and such original bills and resolutions, with any amendments adopted by the House, shall be engrossed, where necessary, and proceedings thereon had as if said bills and resolutions had been passed in the House severally.

of time. This rule may be waived only upon order of two-thirds of the subcommittee, present and voting.

13. The subcommittee shall not consider any claims bill for benefits under the Social Security Act, as amended, when an application for such benefits has been considered on its merits and disallowed or the provisions of the bill otherwise modify or extend the provisions or benefits payable under the Act, but this prohibition shall not apply to bills to waive limitations of time. This rule may be waived only upon order of two-thirds of the subcommittee, present and voting.

14. The subcommittee shall not consider a bill which has twice passed the House and been rejected by a Senate committee, unless and until the bill has first passed the Senate. Such rule shall be waived only upon a vote of two-thirds of the subcommittee.

GENERAL INFORMATION

AS TO PROCEDURE, JURISDICTION, AND CLAIMS AGAINST THE UNITED STATES

In addition to setting forth the rules governing the consideration of private claims bills, an effort has been made in this booklet to set forth some of the basic facts concerning the jurisdiction, policies, and procedures of the subcommittee with reference to its jurisdiction over claims and, in addition, to give some general information concerning claims against the United States. The committee constantly endeavors to keep such information available to those who are seeking or will seek relief from the Government through the Congress. This information is included to further explain this aspect of the subcommittee's jurisdiction.

RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES CONCERNING PRIVATE CLAIMS BILLS

Committee Jurisdiction

Clause 4, Rule XXI:

"4. No bill for the payment or adjudication of any private claim against the Government shall be referred except by unanimous consent to any other than the following committees, namely: To the Committee on Foreign Affairs or to the Committee on the Judiciary."

Private Bills That May Not Be Considered in the House

Clause 2, Rule XXII:

"2. No private bill or resolution (including so-called omnibus claims or pension bills), and no amendment to any bill or resolution, authorizing or directing (1) the payment of money for property damages, for personal injuries or death for which suit may be instituted under the Tort Claims Procedure as provided in title 28, United States Code, or for a pension (other than to carry out a provision of law or treaty stipulation); (2) the construction of a bridge across a navigable stream; or (3) the correction of a military or naval record, shall be received or considered in the House."

9. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim over which another tribunal, court, or department has jurisdiction, until all remedies under such jurisdiction are exhausted.

NOTE

JURISDICTION OF ANOTHER TRIBUNAL

In the settlement of claims, Congress, is always the place of last resort. If another manner of obtaining redress against the Government has been provided (as in the jurisdiction of the United States Court of Federal Claims, the revenue laws, and bond redemption statutes, for example), it obviously was provided by the Congress, and the committee will insist that such jurisdiction be exhausted. A failure by claimant to furnish the proof required by the court or department for determination of his claim is not exhausting the remedy provided, and the committee will not recognize such cases.

10. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim approved by the Congress and vetoed by the President, except upon a material change in the facts or written evidence that administration disapproval has been withdrawn; and this rule may be waived only upon order of two-thirds of the subcommittee, present and voting.

VETOES

In the absence of material change in the facts or written evidence that the administration has withdrawn its disapproval, this rule bars the consideration of a claim which was the subject of a private claims bill vetoed by the President. Concurrence of the House, the Senate, and the President is essential to payment by an act of Congress and disagreement thereto by any one of the three effectively bars enactment. Further action on a bill vetoed by the President is futile in the absence of a material change in the facts or written evidence that administration disapproval has been withdrawn.

11. In all bills carrying an appropriation, a provision shall be added limiting any attorney's fees to not more than 10 percent. This limitation shall not apply to claims based upon findings of the Chief Judge of the United States Court of Federal Claims, court decisions, or where extraordinary services have been rendered. In such cases the committee will determine the amount of fee to be allowed.

12. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim for retirement benefits, compensation, pension, or gratuity under the Railroad Retirement Act when such claim has been considered on its merits and disallowed, or otherwise conflicts with the provisions and compensation of the act, except bills to waive the limitation plication. The committee will not entertain private legislation interfering with the general provisions of such laws by conferring a special benefit or privilege on a claimant. Private legislation of this class has not, at any time, been considered proper under the jurisdiction of this committee.

The subjects of benefits, compensation, retirement or pension rights of persons who serve or who previously served in the Armed Forces of the United States are fully covered by public law. Private bills providing for the award of such benefits to persons or their dependents contrary to the system of benefits awarded under applicable law to other similarly situated individuals, will not be entertained by the committee. Such bills would be discriminatory and would set the precedent for an unending stream of similar private legislation. Consideration of these bills is not regarded as included within the proper functions of the subcommittee. As employed in the rule, the term "Armed Forces" is construed to include all members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, and their respective Reserves, and all other persons not engaged in the civil pursuits of the Government.

8. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim for injuries or damage, either to a member or to third persons, resulting from service in or activities by the National Guard maintained within the several States.

NATIONAL GUARD

In the application of this rule, the subcommittee is guided by the original authority for the establishment of the National Guard as is set forth in article 1, section 8, clause 16 of the Constitution which includes the following as within the powers of Congress:

"To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the States, respectively, the appointment of officers and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress."

Pursuant to the foregoing and other constitutional provisions, the Congress has provided the necessary laws and authorized the necessary regulations to carry them into execution as in the National Defense Act of 1916, as amended, the National Guard Regulations, and others. While the guard may be employed by the Federal Government under certain conditions, such as war or other national emergency, the statutes are careful in defining the extent to which Federal control may be exercised. In order to insure the effectiveness of the Guard in case of their need and use in emergencies affecting the whole Nation, the Government has some authority over their training, and to compensate for this it provides money for maintenance of the Guard, in part, and loans property for its use. Claims against the United States arising from such training activities may be settled administratively under the authority of section 715 of title 32, U.S.C. or pursuant to the tort claims provisions of chapter 171 of title 28 as amended by the National Guard Tort Claims Act (December 29, 1981, Pub. L. 97-124, 95 Stat. 1666). While the Government assists in National Guard maintenance and training since it is a Reserve component of the Armed Forces of the United States, as to State-directed activity it remains primarily a State organization. State-directed activity may take the form of a mobilization of National Guard units by State executive officers in time of disasters or other disorders, and claims arising from that activity are barred by the rule.

their waiver do not in any manner adjudicate the claim involved, a function which is performed by the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs, Department of Labor, under the remaining provisions of chapter 81 (Compensation for Work Injuries) of title 5, U.S.C., as if timely claim has been made direct to that Office in the first instance. As a matter of policy, these bills will include, if approved by the committee, a provision precluding the receipt of benefits for any period prior to their date of approval. In addition, it is customary for such bills to include a limitation requiring presentation of claims thereunder within 6 months from the date of approval. The showing required by the committee to warrant favorable consideration of such a bill is at least a prima facie case, coupled with justification for failure to file within the time prescribed by the act. These are the only bills relating to employees' compensation which the committee will entertain. In the past, private bills have been referred to the committee which would have modified the application of the substantive provisions of the Federal Employee's Compensation Act (now codified in chapter 81 of title 5, U.S.C.) in specific cases. For example, a bill might provide for the granting of compensation in a case where a claim was denied by the Bureau of Employee's Compensation (or the successor Office of Workers' Compensation Programs), or it might provide for greater compensation than that stated in the act, or it might provide compensation in an instance not recognized under the act. The subcommittee will not consider such bills, for rule 7 explicitly bars such consideration.

In the past, the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act have been extended in a limited manner to employees of the Civil Works Administration, the Civil Conservation Corps, the Works Progress Administration, and to other categories of Claimants. Rule 7 would bar the consideration of bills varying the application of the law in any such instance which would extend the provisions of the act to an individual employee for a disease disability, or compensate him therefor, or which would grant compensation over and above the limited amount, or in any manner interfere with the provisions of the act as extended to specific categories of claimants. The committee has concluded that if relief is extended to Government employees or persons entitled to such benefits under the general law, the remedy is that provided by general law, and alternative remedies cannot be provided by enactment of discriminatory private legislation in selected cases.

7. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim for benefits, compensation, pension, or gratuity by an employee or retiree of the Government, or a member of the Armed Forces or the Reserves, or by his dependents, when the benefits, compensation, pension, or gratuity to which such person claims to be entitled is specifically covered by statutes, which apply in a uniform manner to all similarly situated individuals.

BENEFITS, COMPENSATION, PENSION, OR GRATUITY

Civil-service retirement benefits, the persons entitled thereto, the amount thereof, and upon what conditions they may be awarded are fully covered by Chapter 83.—Retirement, of title 5, United States Code.

Similarly, the other benefits and compensation accruing to Federal employees and retirees are provided for by laws that have general ap-

NOTE

BILLS ADVERSELY REPORTED OR REJECTED

While this rule is of long standing, many of the private bills referred to the subcommittee concern claims considered and rejected by it in previous years. The number of bills referred to the subcommittee make it impossible to continue to review cases which were the subjects of unfavorable consideration at a prior time. The subcommittee has adopted the position that a claim considered by it and rejected at a previous consideration should be viewed in the same light as a case which has been adversely decided by a court. In a judicial proceeding, a second case involving the same subject matter would be summarily dismissed by the court, and the subcommittee has concluded that the same considerations apply in matters brought before it.

In applying the exception contained in the rule, the subcommittee has required that the evidence be material in that it relate to the facts of the case and the change in the facts referred to in the rule. Further, the evidence must not have been available, or, with due diligence, capable of having been presented at the time of the prior consideration.

6. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim filed with the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs, Department of Labor, considered on its merits and disallowed; or any bill awarding or increasing compensation to an employee or his dependents in lieu of that prescribed by Chapter 81.—Compensation for Work Injuries, of title 5, United States Code (formerly the Federal Employees' Compensation Act of September 7, 1916, as amended), or otherwise interfering with the provisions and compensation of that chapter, except bills to waive the limitations of time contained in sections 8119, 8121 and 8122, of chapter 81 of title 5 (or of sections 15 to 20, inclusive, of the previous act), and these sections may be waived only upon order of two-thirds of the subcommittee, present and voting.

EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION

This rule has the effect of removing from the committee's jurisdiction the subject of employees' compensation in any but the one permissible form, the time limitation waiver. The subject is not now nor has it ever been considered a proper one for the committee, and it is specifically covered, in all phases, by the codified provisions of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act of September 7, 1916, as amended, now set forth in chapter 81 of title 5, U.S.C. and administered thereunder by the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs, Department of Labor.

Bills to waive the limitations of time contained in sections 8119, 8121 and 8122 of chapter 81 of title 5, U.S.C. (formerly sections 15 to 20, inclusive, of the Employees' Compensation Act of September 7, 1916), may be considered upon vote of two-thirds of the subcommittee. These limitations relate to the time within which claims must be filed with the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs, Department of Labor, the longest allowable period being 5 years. Bills authorizing plement the provisions of the rules of the House governing the consideration and disposition of private bills.

RULES

1. No consideration shall be given to any bill until the subcommittee has received sufficient evidence. Upon request, the clerk will secure departmental or agency comments on the bill.

2. The chairman may, at his or her discretion, schedule the bill for a hearing.

3. Presentation or oral evidence at hearings on private bills shall be limited to 15 minutes for each side. This rule may be modified by order of the chairman in his discretion.

4. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim which accrued more than 15 years before January 1 of the year in which the first session of the current Congress convenes, unless the claim was favorably reported during the immediately preceding Congress, but this rule will not bar the consideration of those claims which were finally disposed of after that date by a court of Government agency. This rule may be waived only upon order of two-thirds of the subcommittee, present and voting.

TIME RULE

An exception is provided in the rule for claims antedating the time limit which had been favorably reported during the immediately preceding Congress. This enables the subcommittee to continue its consideration of claims which had previously been approved by the committee, but not enacted by the Congress.

The rule applies to all claims regardless of the form of the bill. Thus, the rule cannot be avoided by changing a bill which would ordinarily call for settlement by decision of the Congress and direct appropriation into a jurisdictional bill, so as to require determination of the claim by a court or some other authority. It should be noted that the rule applies to the date a claim "accrued," not the date it was presented to the Congress, thereby differing from the ordinary statute of limitations, the operation of which is estopped by formal presentation of the matter, or the filing of suit. Consequently, many claims heretofore presented to the committee cannot, and will not, under the rule, be considered by it. The rule penalizes either for delay in presentation of a claim or delay in the assertion of the claim before the Congress after its presentation.

5. The subcommittee shall not consider any claim adversely reported by it at a previous consideration and tabled by the full committee except upon presentation of new and substantial evidence disclosing a material change in facts which, in the chairman's opinion, is sufficient to warrant reopening the case.

RULES OF PROCEDURE FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF PRIVATE CLAIMS BILLS

In connection with its jurisdiction over claims, the subcommittee considers private bills extending relief to individuals who have no other existing remedy. The right to petition for a redress of grievances is guaranteed by the first amendment to the Constitution. When called upon to decide whether relief should be granted to persons seeking redress of grievances, the subcommittee is guided by principles of equity and justice. The task of the subcommittee is to determine whether the equities and circumstances of a case create a moral obligation on the part of the Government to extend relief to an individual.

House rule XI provides that the rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as they are applicable to committee and subcommittee functions. That rule contains specific provisions concerning committee operation and further, in rule XI (2), provides for written committee rules which are to be consistent with the rules of the House. Subject to these requirements, each committee is free to prescribe additional rules it finds necessary to conduct its business. This is recognized in Judiciary Committee rule I which expressly incorporates the applicable House rules. The balance of the committee's rules are addressed to subjects and situations which, from a procedural standpoint, are peculiar to it: Days of meetings; publication of agenda; hearings; proxy voting; broadcasting; jurisdiction, powers, and duties of standing subcommittees; and non-legislative reports. Committee rule VII provides that—
