
From: Vinit Bharara
To: Herrington, Doug
CC: Krawiec, Peter; Marc Lore
Sent: 11/18/2010 2:17:54 PM
Subject: FW: Diapers.com Testimonial--an Ode to Diapers.com

Thought you guys would get a kick of this email we received from a customer today...

From: Brennan Manning
Sent: Thursday, November 18, 2010 5:02 PM
To: Corporate
Subject: FW: Diapers.com Testimonial--an Ode to Diapers.com
Importance: Low

Thought everyone else might get a kick out of this customer's love and devotion for Diapers.com and a reminder of why we are all here....

From: CHRISTINE VAN TUYL [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, November 18, 2010 11:19 AM
To: Diapers.com Customer Care
Subject: Diapers.com Testimonial--an Ode to Diapers.com
I love Diapers.com so much it inspired a poem! Hope you enjoy it.

An Ode to Diapers.com

Oh how do I love thee, my Diapers.com?

You're a friend when I need one the most.

You deliver treasures so great in a brown, cardboard crate

Before I can butter my toast.

How do I love thee, my point-and-click friend?

I drag and drop into my cart

Pink princess pull-ups, organic fruit-rollups.

You spare me trips to Target and Wal-Mart.

From car seats to baby wipes to diaper cream--all types

You've never let me down.

Need some Earth's Best carrots? Or butterfly barrettes?

No need to drive all over town.

Whether you're Bjorn or Ergo, Britax or Graco

Pampers or Seventh Generation,

It's all there for you, organic and plastic

Oh praise, joy and elation.

And when I haven't quite reached free shipping

You always let me know.

Just five dollars away? Check out the sales today!

And score "Potty Time with Elmo."

And now that you've released Soap.com

My ecstasy's at its height

From Garnier hair-dye to Saline (sensitive-eye)

Shopping's never felt so right.

Don't ever leave me, my Diapers.com

My life would spiral in despair.

I'd have to get in my car and travel afar

(And figure out something to wear.)

by Christine Van Tuyl
Mom of Marley (2 years old) in Coronado, CA
<http://www.questionableparenting.blogspot.com>